Spanish level required

Students do not need to have a high-level official certificate to enter private or public universities in Spain. However, it is important to remark that if you have recently graduated from high school and you want to obtain your university degree in a public university, you have to take the official exam for foreign students to enter the university and, of course, the text will be in Spanish!

Whether you have to do it or not, we recommend having a B2 or C1 level. This will make it easier for you to immerse into your new environment.
